

4 STARS AGAIN FROM THE WASHINGTON POST FOR THE INN AT LITTLE WASHINGTON

October 14, 2011 - The glowing review by Tom Sietsema, which appeared in The Washington Post Magazine on October 16th, mentions the many new developments at The Inn over the past year, particularly the addition of farmer-in-residence Joneve Murphy, Estate Gardener Stuart Poole and California Pastry Chef Mia Ponce. Chef/Proprietor Patrick O'Connell likened the review to "our annual report card" and praised his "dedicated and hardworking team for their continued efforts to exceed expectations". The Inn also holds the coveted Five Star award from the Forbes Travel Guide (formerly known as the Mobil Travel Guide) which it has received for the last 21 years making it the longest consecutive winner in the nation.

Patrick O'Connell is featured in Melanie Dunea's just released book of photographic essays of some of the top chefs in the world and their fantasies about their last meals. Called The Next Course the book features O'Connell in a double page color spread captured in front of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington DC having an imaginary tea party with the Dalai Lama. Also included in the book are Paul Bocuse, Tom Colicchio and Rachel Ray. The book is available in book stores now and autographed copies are being offered at The Inn at Little Washington Shops.

Melaine will be appearing at The Inn on Saturday November 5th from 3-5 pm to sign books at The Tavern Shops.

Rachel Hayden, Director of Public Relations,
The Inn at Little Washington
540-675-5238
rhayden@theinnatlittlewashington.com